Thank you.

We are proud to share with you the NEW Georgetown County Museum at The History Center at 120 Broad Street.

In this former office building, a living museum has taken shape which at its core showcases the collection of The Georgetown County Historical Society.

It is designed to facilitate discovery of the history of the Georgetown County region and serve as a “gateway” for visitors.

It will inspire learning for all ages and serve as a resource center for our community.

We envision a gathering place, a forum for partnerships and a platform for outreach that contributes both to area cultural and economic well being.

Our stakeholders and our community have been the driving forces behind its design.

We have collaborated with Georgetown County schools for nearly three years, testing programming that ensures our new museum supports the 21st century needs of our young learners.

We have worked closely with our project design team on components and equipment that meet visitor expectations, museum standards and community needs.

We are defining and expanding partnerships that will allow us in the months and years to come to provide many and varied exhibits; educational and public programs that offer lasting impact.

The Georgetown County Museum at The History Center is a major program of The Georgetown County Historical Society, a 501 (c) 3 nonprofit.
